The Noble County Gas and Oil company will soon be aided by two or three subsidiaries of the Standard.

The lands in the Otco country northeast of Perry have just been leased and the bidding was very spirited.

Messrs. Hansen and Kirchner of Perry, are blocking a large tract in 22.2 east, here is wishing them luck when they drill.

Perry Republican: Geo. L. Miller of the 101 ranch, said he attended the bidding in of the oil leases, just to keep the Otcos from being robbed, as he wanted the leases to bring all they were worth. It looked like they did when you go to pay $11 per acre for leases in a wildcat country it's going some, but such bids are purely speculative and gambling on futures.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 15.—When do pink stockings become a breach of good taste and how long may a hair ribbon be and still remain in good standing were some of the points taken up by Principal G. W. Henderson of the Bryan school in an address to one hundred mothers of the district. The meeting, held in the auditorium of the school, was the first of a series inaugurated with the view of establishing a closer relationship between the school and the home.

Reviewing problems which have developed during the month that school has been in session, Mr. Henderson said:

"The greatest problem we have to face is the child out of school. We can take care of the child in school, where we have the organization and the machinery for keeping him occupied and interested.

"It is at home and on the way between home and school that the girl or boy becomes a problem. Much that is detrimental is picked up on the streets and to avoid this menace you should allow one minute for each block between your home and school and see that the schedule is kept. Then there will be no time for the child to get into trouble.

Girls Are Overdressed.

ANTHRAX SERUM FAILS IN FIGHT AGAINST DEATH

GRIM REAPER CALLS JUDGE G. F. STACKPOLE OF NEW YORK

DREAD POISON CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM

EVERY EFFORT AND SERUM KNOWN TO SCIENCE FAILS TO SAVE LAWYER'S LIFE

(By Associated Press.)
New York, Oct. 15.—Judge George F. Stackpole, prominent New York lawyer, stricken with anthrax, died of heart failure today resulting from the disease.

Every effort known to science was made to save the life of the lawyer. An injection of anthrax serum was administered yesterday afternoon. This injection was of 25 cubic centimeters and was made in the patient's neck, the seat of the disease.

It was done by Judge Stackpole was caught by Dr. H. H. Silver and Dr. A. Terrell to be sinking to death. The patient's temperature had risen to 103 degrees and his breathing had become more labored and uncertain that it seemed he could not last very long.

While the serum was being prepared for injection, John D. Henderson, secretary to Dr. Elchorn of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Agricultural Department, who discovered the efficacious qualities of the serum, said: "I will wager ten to one in any amount that Judge Stackpole survives. The second injection of the serum will be victorious. Twenty-four hours was required to give the serum its proper test and the first injection was administered only last night."

This morning, despite the heroic efforts made, Judge Stackpole died at Bellevue hospital.

The disease has always heretofore proved fatal from within two to four days with other human beings whom it has attacked. In this instance the victim lingered seven days after being infected with the dread disease.

Anthrax is an animal disease, usually with cattle and sheep. It is in the form of a malignant pustule, resembling a carbuncle. It may be transmitted to man by inoculation. When a human is infected the spleen becomes greatly enlarged and filled with bacteria.

It is fatal to humans, but animals frequently recover from it. Judge Stackpole was stricken after a visit to his stock farm.
